

With all the documentation about and results of previous trys showing interference it causes, I don't understand why the BPL issue is still hanging around..Please put this thing to rest and move on to some other issues